

Distributive Property of Multiplication states that if multiplying a number by a sum of numbers, the product will be the same as multiplying the number by each addend, and then adding the products together such as  $a \times (b + c) = (a \times b) + (a \times c)$ .