

Hint

When simulating an experiment in order to predict an outcome, the number of events need to match. In this problem, there is one event with four items in the sample space. However, you are predicting 10 people's choices.